TO FIT FOR CAPE SHORE.

Large Fleet of Seiners Home from the South.

FEW FISH LANDED AT NEWPORT

Several Netters at New York with Medium Fares.

About 30 sail of the southern seining fleet have arrived home since Saturday afternoon, and all will now fit for the Cape Shore and get away as early as possible. The vessels report a poor season out south, the combination of blowy days, light nights and the water firing much more than usual, together with losing the run of the fish the past two weeks, being the causes why the fleet as a whole has done so poorly. Big mesh seines when the small fish were first found and the wildness of the large fish which came along later also had much to do with the smallness of the catch.

A special to the Times from its Newport, R. I., correspondent last evening states that it was blowing a heavy gale from the southwest there yesterday and that 20 sail had harbored at Block Island. Schs. Natalie J. Nelson, Veda M. McKown, Saladin, Slade Gorton, Romance, Thomas J. Carroll, Harry A. Nickerson and Shenandoah had put in at Newport, the latter with 10 barrels of large fresh mackerel caught Friday night, 15 miles south-southeast of Block Island. The trip sold to the T Wharf Mackerel Co. Capt. Gammon reports seeing several schools every night since Wednesday, and the other vessels report the same, but the weather has been too bad to fish.

Sch. Ralph L. Hall came over from Block Island with eight barrels of large fresh mackerel, which sold to Charles W. Powers for George T. Moon of Fulton Market. Sch. Elizabeth Silsbee also came over from Block Island with 10 barrels of large fresh mackerel which sold to Capt. Charles H. Harty for John Nagle & Co.

The captains report that there seem to be some small schools anywhere from 10 to 20 miles south-southeast from Block Island, but as yet there is no body to them.

The fish of the Silsbee and Hall brought 31 cents each, and the latter being the first one in, had the first fare landed at Newport this season.

The following are at Fulton market, New York, this morning:

GETTING A FEW SQUID.

Traps at Edgartown Also Taking Plenty of Alewives.

A dispatch to the Times states that sch. Lelia E. Norwood was at Edgartown Friday to bait. Alewives are plentiful there and cheap. The traps are taking some squid every day.

WITH SMALL TRIP.

Steamer Spray Is at T Wharf Today with Only 37,000 Pounds.

The steam otter trawler Spray arrived at T wharf, Boston, yesterday, from her ninth trip, with only a small fare, 37,000 pounds of fresh fish. She fished on Western Bank, LaHave and Georges and found fish scarce, but dogfish very plentiful, and even the stout net was not proof against their ravages.
